Responsive Design Exercise

Create an HTML page with CSS to match the following website design. Your design should be responsive and change to the layout shown in the second figure when the screen is less than 600px. Implement the design using flexbox for the columns and menu, then using grid for the entire layout.

Once you have it working create another version that uses Bootstrap's grid for the entire layout. Your github.io page should have links to both solutions.